CURRENT EVENTS.

The News of the World in Brief Paragraphs.

There has been a rapid decline, within the past few years, in the native population of the Alaskan islands.

Sheriff North, of St. Clair county, Ala., who was put on trial for the murder of a mob which sought a prisoner in his custody, was acquitted by a jury.

Mr. Thomas Lipton says that if the American cup is to leave this country he is determined to have it. It is reported that Emperor William is considering the matter of challenging for the cup.

The house of John Bethel, a negro in Henderson, was entirely destroyed by dynamite last Friday. Bethel and his wife had a narrow escape from death. The shock of the explosion aroused persons all over the city.

Chairman Jones, of the South Carolina Democratic State Committee, has withdrawn from the race for United States Senator, and urges Tillman and McLaurin to withdraw also and unite on Gen. Wade Hampton.

Three newspaper men and a barber have been arrested in Philadelphia charged with kidnapping and robbing a woman of that city. It is claimed that they kept her a prisoner four days, robbed her of $2,000 worth of diamonds, and forced her to sign checks for large sums of money.

Bedford, Ind., Oct. 3.—R. Byrne Dye, a young printer of this city, has received word that he is heir to eleven million dollars left by an ancestor in Pennsylvania. The estate consists of anthracite coal lands in and about Pittsburg. Dye has for several years been employed on the Democrat.

The State Department has been instructed by President Roosevelt to spare no effort to obtain the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary who is now being held for ransom by Bulgarian brigands. It is probable that the ransom will have to be paid to secure her release.

As a means of breaking down the color line as a party division in the south president Roosevelt proposes to appoint to office a number of Democrats who are not in line with their party on the silver and anti-expansion issues. These appointments are to be made without regard to political influence, and he believes it will be the means of breaking down the barrier that forces the white men of the south always to stand together as Democrats, to prevent negro domination. The idea of the President is said to be not to build up a factional following but to restore popular government as far as it can safely be done.

The Hague, Oct. 5.—A. D. W. Wolmarans, one of the Boer envoys, who has been visiting Mr. Kruger at Hilversum, found the mental condition of the former President of the Transvaal to be by no means satisfactory. Mr. Kruger is slowly growing weaker physically and mentally.

The slaughter of Company C, Ninth infantry, on the island of Samar, turns out to have been a massacre. The assault was led by the presidente of the town, claiming to be friendly. The bodies of the victims were saturated with kerosene and burned and otherwise mutilated. Forty-five bodies were found and seven are still not accounted for.

The merchant millers of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Tennessee, and Missouri are preparing to renew their old fight against what they term a discrimination of rates in favor of raw wheat as against wheat flour. An attempt will be made to have Congress change the interstate commerce law, which the millers claim is a handicap to the export flour trade. The aid of the President will be solicited.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 7.—A new consumption cure is being tried in this city, and members of the board of health pronounce it a success so far as experiment has gone. The county has set aside a sum of money to help carry on experiments, and tests will be made on consumptives in the poor infirmary. Dr. Peckinpaugh, of Mt. Vernon, Ind., is the discoverer of the new remedy. The treatment consists of inhalation by the patient of the fumes of smoke from the burning of a mixture of various kinds of forest leaves. The fumes are said to kill the bacilli of the lungs.

The British army makes no headway in South Africa, and the popular outcry in England becomes greater. The recall of Lord Kitchener and the return of Lord Roberts is practically demanded, and the War Office comes in for more censure by the appointment of Sir Redvers Buller to command an army corps. The cost of the war in men killed, wounded or dead from disease, but not including those invalided home, is 57,212. The exchequer shows a deficit for the year of $350,000,000. Effective occupation by the British of South Africa is about one-third what it was a year ago.

In a dispatch to the Chicago Times-Record Walter Wellman says that the United States and Great Britain have reached an agreement concerning the Isthmian Canal, and that the new treaty embodying the agreement will soon be in the hands of President Roosevelt. It is believed that the objections urged to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty are met by the new one, which provides that the canal shall be neutral, with its neutrality guaranteed by the United States alone, but that in case of war the United States may take such steps as it deems proper for its own protection.

LEVI COOK.

ALL OVER THE STATE.

Spicy Items Rescued From the Drift of Daily Events.

Mrs. J. A. Witwer, a widow residing in Dayton, Ohio, was arrested by the police Monday at instigation of the corner, and is held a close prisoner at central station, pending an investigation, which promises the most sensational results.

Mrs. Witwer is suspected of 14 deliberate murders, the list including her four husbands, her five children, one sister and four members of different families in which she was employed as housekeeper.

It has been discovered by a lawyer in Brooklyn that every volunteer who enlisted during the Spanish-American war is entitled to bounties amounting to $276, provided for by a federal and state statute passed a long time ago. The state law provides for the payment of $84 and the federal law $192 to each volunteer.

It is estimated that the discovery of those old laws will cost the State about $2,000,000 and the federal government about $5,000,000.

The matter is now pending before Attorney General Knox at Washington, and John C. Sexton, presiding judge of the court of claims. It is said that the $3,000 claims represented by the attorney will be allowed without an extended legal contest. The matter is expected to be settled within the next ten days.

Question Answered.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Biliousness. Doctors were scarce and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by R. F. Haynes and J. H. Orme. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

Tot Causes Night Alarm.

"One night my brother's baby was taken with croup," writes Mrs. J. C. Snider of Crittenden, Ky., "it seemed it would strangle before we could get a doctor, so we gave it Dr. King's New Discovery, which gave quick relief and permanently cured it. We always keep it in the house to protect our children from croup and whooping cough. It cured me of a chronic bronchial trouble that no other remedy would relieve." Infallible for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles, 50c and $1 at H. K. Woods & Co.

Senator Deboe discussed the Sapp case with the President last week but received no encouragement.

The monthly balance sheet of the State Auditor and Treasurer shows a balance on hand in the State Treasury at the close of business on Sept. 30, of $288,216.75.

A mob forcibly entered the jail at Shelbyville, seized Jimbo Field and Clarence Garnett, negro boys, and swung them from the C. and O. railroad trestle, near the depot. Their dead bodies were allowed to hang there until the next morning. The boys were charged with stoning to death Will C. Hart, a printer, about ten days ago.

It has been discovered in the last few months that some of the streams in Trigg and Christian counties abound in pearls of the very finest quality, and a great many very fine ones have been discovered. They have all brought good prices, some having been sold for as high as fifty dollars in the rough, and ranging from that down to one dollar.

Mrs. Mat S. Major, of Herndon, was seriously burned about the face and neck while canning peaches, says the Cadiz Record. Mrs. Major had just finished sealing several tin cans when one of them exploded. The contents of the can, boiling hot, struck her in the face and on the neck. She was thrown nearly across the room by the force of the explosion.

According to the figures gathered by the Courier-Journal, the approximate number of votes registered in Louisville for the three days, is 42,080, or 2,149 less than last year. The Democrats showed a decided gain, while the Republicans lost 2,860. The Democrats have a plurality over the Republicans and independents of 3,000. The negroes and "old line" Republicans took little interest in the registration.

The result of the registrations in the towns and cities throughout the State Tuesday of last week, was gratifying to the Democrats, as they made substantial gains in nearly every section. In Lexington, Bowling Green, Frankfort, Georgetown, and in several Republican strongholds the Democrats succeeded in surprising their opponents by their show of strength.

The registration was generally heavier than last year, and a great deal of interest was manifested.

The Third Baptist church of Owensboro is insuring the lives of twenty young men, who are its members, on the ten-payment-life plan, for the benefit of the church. The church pays the premiums and in the event of the death of any of the men the insurance goes to the church, to which the policies are made payable. Several policies have been issued and it is said the twenty policies will soon be written. The policies are for $2,000 each. The insurance is to provide a fund for the ultimate payment of the church debt. The plan was suggested by the insurance company.

The Paducah News-Democrat in speaking of a proposition to build a railroad from Dixon, in Webster county, to Owensboro, says:

"Mr. I. H. Wheatcroft, president and general manager of the Kentucky Western railroad, was in the city yesterday en route to his home in Dixon, Ky. Mr. Wheatcroft is now operating a line of twenty miles from Blackford to Dixon, in Webster county, and has just returned from Europe, where he succeeded in interesting foreign capitalists in the building an extension of the line from Dixon to Owensboro.

"The proposed extension will open up a line of fine country that now lies idle."

The examination of witnesses to determine the responsibility for the City of Golconda wreck before Government Inspectors Jno Moore and Richard Williams, of Evansville, took place last week in Paducah. Inspector Moore said that there was simply nothing to give out to the public until the decision of the inspectors, fixing the responsibility for the accident, was made. This decision would be made, he said, after a careful consideration of the evidence, but he did not know how soon it would be given out.

There were fourteen witnesses examined, all being officers of the steamer and passengers who escaped from the wreck.

The wholesale and retail jewelry store of J. J. Bleich, of Paducah, was broken open and robbed of $7,000 worth of jewelry Thursday night.

The work was evidently that of professionals, and it is believed they are following Buffalo Bill's show. Entrance to the store was gained by cutting out a rear window. The combination of the safe was worked and they were thus saved the trouble of blowing it open. They took all the goods, the most valuable of which were in the safe, into a rear room and there sorted them. They took 150 watches, 1500 rings, many of them being fine ones, and $3,000 worth of diamond pendants. All of the cheaper goods were thrown on the floor, and only those of real value were taken, showing that the men who committed the robbery were familiar with the jewelry business.

COURT OF INQUIRY.

Courageous Was Schley's Conduct at Santiago.

The Schley Court of Inquiry is still examining witnesses. The proceedings thus far are very favorable for Rear Admiral Schley.

In Sampson's letter to Schley, directing a disobedience of the Navy Department orders and deciding to hold Cienfuegos and Havana, the word "Santiago" is used where, it is claimed, it should be Cienfuegos. The Navy Department refused to concede this as an error, and which, as such, would justify Schley in having remained at Cienfuegos; thereupon Schley's counsel read further from the letter to show that Sampson meant to blockade Cienfuegos and not Santiago, and demanded that Sampson be called. There was an explanation by Lieut. Hodgson of the Brooklyn's loop, to show it was not cowardice. The Brooklyn was so close in that there was danger of ramming or torpedoes. Schley ordered a turn to starboard. When attention was called to the proximity of the Texas he said the Texas would take care of herself. The turn to starboard was the result of a discussion between Hodgson, Capt. Cook and Schley, the former favoring backing the engines and turning to port, but the two others outvoted him, contending that they must not let the enemy get away, and by turning to starboard at full speed ahead, would make much greater speed, than by backing and swinging to port. The question of ability to have coaled at sea on May 26th is still a mooted one, with the burden of proof that it could have been done late in the afternoon.

A statement has been issued on behalf of Rear Admiral Sampson to the effect that he did not approve the passage in "Historian" Maclay's book calling Rear Admiral Schley a "cattiff and a coward." It is asserted that when Sampson read this far he became angry and refused to go further, and that his secretary finished the job.

Lieut. Commander Hodgson declared that the Rear Admiral's conduct at the battle of Santiago was in keeping with his position as Commander-in-Chief. The witness also explained his correspondence with Rear Admiral Schley, concerning the colloquy between them during the heat of the Santiago engagement. Capt. Folger, who was also a witness, claimed that Schley's blockade at Santiago would not have proved effective had the Spanish ships tried to escape on a dark day or at night.

A Magazine for College Men.

The Business Side of a Great University, by President Harper, of the University of Chicago, is the opening article in the College Man's Number (October 12) of the Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia.

Theodore Roosevelt, Harvard '80 is the title of an entertaining paper on the President's college life, by his friend, Owen Wister. Other strong features of this number are short stories by Max Adeler, Jesse Lynch Williams and Frank Norris, and a page of "Nature Studies" by Oliver Herford.

This number will be of unusual interest to all college men.

Salary Raised.

On the recommendation of Senator Deboe, T. F. Newcomb of Marion, Ky., a clerk in the Census Bureau, has been promoted from $1,000 to $1,200 per annum.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY.

Big Mineral Deal--Sad Death of Popular Young Lady.

Mr. DeWitt Roberts, a Chicago capitalist, spent last week in Smithland and before leaving closed a deal with Mr. George Dalay and others whereby he secured an option upon 430 acres of mineral land, four miles above Smithland, on the Cumberland river.

Mrs. John Bishop, of the Joy locality, died several days ago of typhoid fever. She was an estimable christial lady, about 33 years of age, and leaves a husband and two or three children. Mr. Bishop is now very sick with fever and not expected to recover.

The wire for the fence around the great farm and stock ranch on the Hillman land has been ordered. With Mr. Layton as manager this promises to be the greatest and most profitable enterprise of its kind in western Kentucky.

"Uncle" Horace Dean, one of the best known citizens of the county, died last week at his home near Birdsville. He was about 78 years of age and was born and reared in Livingston county, where his life was spent.

Miss May, the 16-year-old daughter of Leroy May, near Lola, died Tuesday night. The young lady was terribly burned by her clothes becoming ignited while standing near a fire in the yard about three weeks ago. She had been suffering ever since, until death relieved her, as stated above. She was a pretty and popular young lady.

FISCAL COURT.

In Session Last Week--County Levy Fixed--Other Matters.

The fiscal court convened Tuesday, Oct. 1st, and was in session three days.

The county levy for the year 1902 was fixed at $1.50 on each poll tax payer, and 25c on each $100. Marion precinct levy for 1892 was fixed at 20c on each $100.

An appropriation of $100 was made for the building of a road bed through the land of G. P. Slayton.

W. H. Asher was appointed superintendent of the county poor house.

An appropriation of $250 was made for the building of a bridge on the Salem and Marion road, near the New Salem church; $300 was appropriated for the building of a bridge on Deer creek, at the Bettisford.

County Attorney Kevil was allowed 25 per cent. of the franchise tax due the county from the railroad.

County Court Orders.

Geo. W. Cruce released as guardian of Tom Rushing.

Sol B. Hunt released as road overseer; W. D. Cain appointed.

Mrs. A. C. Bennett, widow of Wallace Bennett, granted letters of administration on estate of her deceased husband.

G. B. Crawford, Foster Threlkeld, John L. Franklin appointed to appraise Wallace Bennett estate.

T. H. McReynolds granted license to sell spirituous liquors in Dycsburg.

Frank I. Crider appointed guardian for minor heirs of J. H. Travis, deceased.

Josephus Stone and W. W. Latham authorized to solemnize the rites of marriage.

Don't wait until you become chronically constipated but take DeWitt's Little Early Risers now and then. They will keep your liver and bowels in good order. Easy to take. Safe pills. Robt. F. Haynes.

Why Osteopathy is Popular.

It is a fact that the osteopath in a few weeks or months obtains a standing with the best people in his community that it would take a physician years to acquire.

The reasons for this are many and obvious. In the first place the theory of the science of osteopathy is a rational and common sense one. There is nothing vague, mysterious, or occult about it; but being based upon the laws of nature, it commends itself to the unprepared and thinking mind.

Another thing that tends to popularize it is the plain and reasonable system of charges usually adopted by the osteopath—a system whereby the patient is enabled to tell approximately what it is going to cost him to regain health. The treatment is undertaken with the knowledge that there will be no bill for medicine, extra visits, etc., at the final reckoning.

Almost every one dislikes to take medicine. There is hardly an adult to be found who has not many times been depressed and sickened by heroic doses of drugs, and as the Irishman expressed it, "felt sick a long time after he got well." If osteopathy did nothing but abolish experimental doses by poisonous drugs and curtail the number of surgical operations, it would be worthy of the gratitude of countless sufferers.

And finally, osteopathy has loyal defenders and warm adherents among all classes, because of results obtained by its practitioners. "Nothing succeeds like success." It is results that tell.

What the invalid wants is to get well. He is not so much interested in the name of the school of healing to which his doctor belongs as he is in the fact that he can do what he claims to do. It is by this standard that osteopathy asks to be judged. While the claim is not made for it that it is a cure-all, or that it has eliminated death from the world, yet the fact remains that it has brought health and vigor to the body and cheer to the heart of many an invalid from whom all hope had vanished forever.

These are but a few of the reasons why osteopathy has firm, loyal friends wherever it has been introduced by competent and conscientious osteopaths. If you are sick and suffering try osteopathy. If you desire the most profitable profession, try osteopathy.

Does it Pay to Buy Cheap?

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the most severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible. If not possible for you, then in either case take the ONLY remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success for throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try ONE bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. For sale by R. F. Haynes and Jas. H. Orme. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhea.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhea and thought I was past being cured said John S. Holliday of French Camp, Miss. 'I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of diarrhea that I could do no kind of labor, and could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it may be in reach of all who suffer as I have.' For sale by R. F. Haynes.

THE COLONEL WAS EASY.

But He Had Some Ideas of Logic Just the Same.

"Speaking of chronic touchers," said a man about town, "I suppose there never was an easier victim for the tribe than my old boss. The colonel, as we all called him, had an impediment in his speech, and he used to claim it was easier to go down in his pocket than to try to put up an excuse. As a matter of fact, he had a heart as big as a hoghead and simply couldn't resist an appeal.

"One of the numerous touchers who marked him down as prey was a chap by the name of—well, call him Smiley, which isn't far from the right thing. "Smiley was a brisk, plausible cuss and always did his touching on the strength of a circumstantial story, but the trouble was he did so much of it he used to sometimes get his cues mixed. "The first time he tapped the colonel he rushed in, all excitement, and told him his wife had just fallen down stairs and broken her leg. He needed a ten for unforeseen expenses, and of course he got it. Some time elapsed, and one day he turned up again. "Colonel," he said in a frank, businesslike fashion, "can you lend me $5? I owe you a little money now, but I have some sickness out at my house and really need this amount."

"What's the t-t-trouble, my b-b-boy?" stuttered the old man kindly as he handed over the five. "My wife has just fractured her ankle," replied Smiley.

"It requires a good deal of nerve to make a third touch at the same place, and Smiley staid away for fully six months. When he came in, it was on the run.

"Colonel," he exclaimed breathlessly, "I feel like a dog when I see you, but I've got to have a couple of dollars quick and haven't time to go anywhere else. Can you accommodate me and just make a mem. of the whole amount? I'll send it to you next week."

"Why, what's the m-m-matter?" asked the colonel, startled by his manner.

"My wife has broken her leg," he replied, "and I want to send a cab for a doctor."

"B-b-broken another l-l-leg?" echoed the colonel, amazed. "Here's the m-m-money, Smiley. B-b-but sometimes I think," he added grimly, "that you m-m-must have m-m-married a c-c-centiped!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Yankee Thrift.

A guest with an irascible temper at a hotel in a New England town found that the dinner was not to his liking, and he had no hesitancy in telling the waiter so. Finally he threw down his knife and fork.

"Well," he exclaimed, "there's no use in talking. I can't eat this stuff."

"I'm sorry, sir," responded the waiter, "but you might as well, for you'll have to pay for it anyhow."—Detroit Free Press.

Not a Hardship.

"Do Mr. and Mrs. Wickelson, the people who live across the hall from you, ever disturb you at night by their quarreling? I am told that they fight like cats and dogs."

"They do fight, but we are not disturbed in the least. My husband always permits me to let the transom down and listen without a protest."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Her Sarcasm.

"What branch of art does your friend prefer?" asked the young woman. "I don't know," answered Miss Cayenne, "but I should say he is an impressionist."

"Has he produced anything remarkable in that line?"

"Yes; the impression that he is an artist."—Washington Star.

Chance to Get Even.

Young Bridegroom—Darling, I think I should like to take your little brother with us to Niagara falls.

Bride—How kind that would be of you, Harry!

Young Bridegroom—Yes. I should like to push him over them.—Chicago Tribune.

Cold Comfort.

"Looks as though our day was done," said the dejected horse.

"Oh, I don't know!" replied Optimistic Dobbin. "They'll need leather for certain parts of these automobiles, and they'll probably use our hides for that."—Philadelphia Press.

Reliable Medicine.

"Do you believe in mind cure?" "Yes," answered Mr. Meekton's wife. "It sometimes works with matters of habit. Every time I give Mr. Meekton a piece of my mind about smoking it cures him for several days."—Washington Star.

The Unpardonable Sin.

"Girls are getting awfully flincky." "What's the matter now?" "That girl refused me." "Did she give any reason?" "She says I made a pun while I was proposing to her."—Detroit Free Press.

His Old Habits Abandoned.

"It was too bad about Nell Richman's husband dying so suddenly, wasn't it?" "Did he die suddenly?" "Yes. Hadn't you heard about it?" "No. I thought he was from Philadelphia."—Chicago Times-Herald.

That Depends.

"What is the difference between a sharp man and a smooth rascal?" "Frequently there is no difference. The term depends upon whether you profit or lose by the operations of the man in question."—Chicago Post.

Dull Witted.

Borrowell—I can't imagine what you see in Smithkins. He's so very dull. Wigwag—He's sharp enough to cut you.—Philadelphia Record.

Theo. Roosevelt, 26th American President

His Life Has Been Full of Snap and Excitement

AUTHOR AS WELL AS STATESMAN

Mr. Roosevelt has been known to the public principally as a writer and a rough rider. It was therefore singularly appropriate in at least one respect that it was in the musty atmosphere of old books that he took the oath to "faithfully execute the office of president of the United States," and to the best of his ability to "preserve,

SECRETARY OF STATE JOHN HAY.

protect and defend the constitution of the United States." On Saturday afternoon, September 14, 1901, in the library of the home of his friend, Ansley Wilcox, and in the city of Buffalo, N. Y., the simple ceremony was performed. The president is dead; the president lives; long live our president!

formed. The president is dead; the president lives; long live our president!

Theodore Roosevelt is the twenty-sixth president of the United States, and the fifth vice president to succeed to the executive chair. John Tyler was the first, succeeding William Henry Harrison. Millard Fillmore was the second; he succeeded Zachary Taylor. The assassination of Abraham Lincoln brought Andrew Johnson into the white house. James A. Garfield was succeeded by his vice president, Chester A. Arthur. Roosevelt has one advantage over all these four men in that he comes into his great office better known to the public than any of them. Almost from boyhood he has been more or less in the eyes of the public.

This statesman, legislator, author, student, huntsman, rough rider and warrior is a descendant through nine generations from early Dutch settlers of New York. Along this ancestral line there have been infusions of Scotch, Irish and French-Huguenot blood. The sought a new life at Chimney Butte, Dak., where he grazed cattle and led the life of a cowboy. He became known from Medora to Dickinson as the boldest and bravest cattleman in the region. He did what the cowmen did. He lived as they lived. He commanded the respect even of the desperadoes. His lungs expanded, his body developed and he gained a reserve of health that seems to have grown every year since.

Turns to Literature.
He lost money on his cattle venture, but he returned to New York a strong man physically, and he made the race for mayor of that city. He was defeated, but he laughed. He understood that the corrupt elements of the city would not tolerate him, but he waited. Meanwhile he wrote books—books on hunting, books on western life, books on eastern cities. His style in literature was vigorous and pleasing. His books sold well and the magazines made great demand for his writings. The public liked his breeziness, his evident sincerity, his courage, and partially appreciated him even before he became a national civil service commissioner in 1899.

Once at Washington, he commenced an enforcement of the law of the most vigorous kind. He made himself disliked among the spoilsmen of both parties, but he held to the line of his duty. He took the law as he found it, lived true to his oath of office and made the measure respected in many quarters where it had been sneered at before.

Shakes Up the Police.
From Washington he passed to a police commissionership in New York city. His peculiar ability to work, and work on right lines, gave the corrupt police force such a shaking up as it had never had before. He was police commissioner in every sense of the word, unbribable, unapproachable, fair to the fair-minded, severe on the criminal. His books continued to sell in increasing number, and the public through the press, began to have a broader view of him.

When the Spanish-American war came he was assistant secretary of the navy by the authority of President McKinley. He had much to do with the organization of the navy for the conflict, and it has always been believed that his influence largely contributed to the sending of Admiral Dewey to Hong-Kong, and thence to Manila bay.

When war became a certainty Mr. Roosevelt resigned his position in the navy department, and with Gen. Leonard Wood organized the First volunteer cavalry, better known as the rough riders. Gen. Wood was colonel of this regiment and Mr. Roosevelt lieutenant colonel. The members of the regiment came from the first families in the east, from ranches in the west, came from wherever good horsemen, daring men and good shots could be secured.

Forms Unique Regiment.
The regiment was the most unique of its kind ever organized, and was much scoffed at in the beginning. Before it had been two days in Cuba the wisdom of its organization was plainly seen. The men were fitted for any kind of campaigning. Their colonel and lieutenant colonel took what they took. The regiment practically foraged itself, and was first in the field, and first to be baptized with fire. At Las Guasimas, Kettle hill and San Juan it gave up its bravest and best and went on to victory.

Mr. Roosevelt was its colonel before the end of the war, and pronounced by the foreign military attaches who observed his conduct in the field as one of the first military officers of the day. He was in Santiago at the surrender, brought his regiment back to the Unitcepted at the last moment. During the campaign he made a trip of over 21,000 miles, speaking for the ticket, and was received everywhere with popular acclaim. Since his inauguration he has presided over one extra session of the senate, and made several trips throughout the country, attending public functions.

E. A. HITCHCOCK, SECRETARY OF INTERIOR

As to the real Theodore Roosevelt, authentic things that he has said give ample revelation as to what manner of a character he will bring to the presidency. On "Americanism," in an interview in 1893, he said:

"I naturally disapprove of the half-conscious spread-eagle Americanism, which is ever exerting itself at the wrong moments. I dislike it, of course, when it is put forward as a plea to excuse moral shortcomings of a kind usually connected with public affairs. Nevertheless, in spite of this abuse, I am sure that no man can well play his part in our life who is not honestly American in heart, belief and instinct."

Admirer of Parkman.
"If one wishes to find a typical American, one may consider Francis Parkman. He always appealed to my admiration, because he made his life work largely of the description of that frontier warfare between our backwoods-men and their foes which has been of such incalculable importance in our land's history."

In one of his published works he says: "In speaking to my own coun-ed States and disbanded it at Montauk point in the fall of 1898. It contributed among the volunteer troops more to the success of the American arms in Cuba than any other regiment formed.

Is Chosen Governor.

The colonel became governor of New York immediately after his return to trymen there is one point upon which I wish to lay especial stress; that is, the necessity for a feeling of broad, radical and intense Americanism, if good work is to be done in any direction. Above all, the one essential for success in every political movement which is to do lasting good is that our citizens should act as Americans, not as Americans with a prefix and qualification—not as Irish-Americans, German-Americans, native Americans—but as Americans pure and simple.

Opinion on Caste.
"It is an outrage for a man to drag foreign politics into our contests and vote as an Irishman or German or other foreigner, as the case may be, and there is no worse citizen than the professional Irish dynamite or German anarchist, because of his attitude toward our social and political life, not to mention his efforts to embroil us with foreign powers. But it is no less an outrage to discriminate against one who has become an American in good faith, merely because of his creed or birthplace."

Of caste he has written: "As for the upper social world, the fashionable world, it is much as it was when portrayed in 'Potiphar Papers,' save that modern society has shifted the shrine at which it pays comical but sincere homage from Paris to London. Perhaps it is rather better, for it is less provincial and a trifle more American."

As governor he stood for radical taxation legislation and state control of the trusts. His term was marked by a pronounced fight on his part against the New York republican machine. He did not seek the vice presidential nomination last year, but had it forced upon him, and he accepted at the last moment. During the campaign he made a trip of over 21,000 miles, speaking for the ticket, and was received everywhere with popular acclaim. Since his inauguration he has

But a would-be upper class based mainly on wealth, on which it is the exception and not the rule for a man to be of any real account in the national life, whether as a politician, a literary man, or otherwise, is of necessity radically defective and of little moment."

He is an intimate of Jacob Riis, the tenement slum reformer of New York city; of Frederick Hollis, secretary of The Hague conference, and Henry Cabot Lodge. His habits are simple, his life most strenuous. He does not know the meaning of the word "idle," or of "misapplication." He has often been called a "typical American." The phrase fits him.

ROOSEVELT AS AN AUTHOR.
During a Busy Life He Has Found Time for Much Writing.

It is now nearly 20 years since Theodore Roosevelt took a place in the public eye as a man of affairs. Granting him the prophet's three score years and ten, only a little more than a third of his period of maturity has passed. And yet 14 volumes stand to his credit. And if we add the books in which his name appears as editor and contributor, like "The History of the Royal Navy," and the book of which he and Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge are joint authors, the total number of his books is 21.

This would be remarkable in an author whose sole occupation was writing. It appears still more so in a man to whom authorship is but an incident, when we recall that he has served three terms in the New York legislature; that he was for five years a member of the civil service commission, and for three arduous years president of the board of police commissioners in New York city; that he has been assistant secretary of the navy, commander of a regiment in the war

Thomas Benton," "Life of Governor Morris," "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail," "The Winning of the West," "History of New York City," "Essays on Practical Politics," "The Wilderness Hunter," "Hero Tales from American History," "Naval War of 1812."

THE PRESIDENT'S FAMILY.
Mr. Roosevelt's Domestic Life Is an Ideal One.

Mr. Roosevelt has been married twice. His first wife was Miss Alice Lee, of Boston; the second Miss

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Edith Carow, of New York. He is the father of six children, ranging from 16 to 3 years of age.

His domestic life is ideal. Whether ensconced in winter quarters at Albany or New York, or at the famous Roosevelt summer home at Oyster Bay, on Long Island, he is an indulgent father and romps with his children with as much zest as the youngest of them. The youngsters are known as the Roosevelt half-dozen, and all reflect in some manner the paternal characteristic.

SECRETARY OF WAR ELIHU ROOT.

The oldest girl is Alice, dark and serious looking. She rides her father's Cuban campaign horse with fearlessness and grace. The next olive branch is Theodore, Jr., or "young Teddy," the idol of his father's heart, and a genuine chip of the old block. Young "Teddy" owns a trusty shotgun and dreams of some day shooting bigger game than his father ever did. He also rides a pony of his own. Alice, the oldest girl, is nearly 17. She is the only child by the first Mrs. Roosevelt. "Young Teddy," the present Mrs. Roosevelt's oldest child, is 13. Then there are Kermit, 11; Ethel, 9; Archibald, 6, and Quentin, 3.

Mr. Roosevelt's style is that of a plain man telling a straightforward story. After reading his books you are certain that he never paid any attention to his style, and the evidence is, not that the style is not good, but that there is absolutely no straining after effect. He is essentially a practical man, but he is well endowed with imagination, and this gives to his work an occasional poetic touch that appeals to the reader's sympathies. He has, too, a power of coining striking phrases and of putting things in a way that catches the attention. "The strenuous life" is a phrase with a meaning that could not be put again in so few words. In a recent speech he spoke of our war with Spain as "merely a bit of the police work of the world." Once before he spoke of it as "a bit of rough surgery."

These utterances reveal the man. He has written much. The titles of some of his best works are: "Life of McKinley's Councilors Will Stand by the New President.

It is almost certain that the cabinet of President McKinley will be the cabinet of President Roosevelt. He not only requested them to remain, but stated to them that they were his choice for the positions which they were occupying. All of the members including Secretary Hay complied unconditionally. In the event of Secretary Hay's retirement (sooner or later) it is altogether probable that Secretary of War Root will succeed to the state portfolio. This will make an opening for at least one new man to take charge of the war office. No other changes under present circumstances are even remotely likely.

LECTURE COURSE.

First Class Attractions to Appear
Here This Season.

The people of this city are to have the benefit of a course of lyceum attractions of the highest merit; a course, the equal of which is rarely enjoyed by towns much larger than Marion. The course will be known as "A BRILLIANT CONSTELLATION." The manager of the opera house secured the attractions on a heavy guarantee.
The entertainments will be among the season's attractions at the opera house. The course will be composed of six entertainments;
Dixie Belles in October, Gov. Bob Taylor, with male quartette, in his new lecture, "The Old Plantation" in Nov., Henry Watterson in Dec.
Col. Ham, Jan., Prof. Lane, Feb.,
Dr. Willets, March.

By securing season tickets the cost will be exceedingly small.
Single season tickets will be sold at $3 and double tickets at $5. At the regular prices of admission the tickets will cost almost double this amount. The course is certainly a brilliant one.

Poor House to Let.

I have been appointed by court of claims to let the county poor house and farm. Will receive seal-

Allie Sisco and Grover Brown
Quarrel and Sisco is Shot.

Monday night Allie Sisco and Grover Brown became involved in quarrel while returning from Chap-

Sisco through the shoulder and leg. Sisco was armed, but whether or not he fired on Brown is not known. Sisco's wounds are considered dangerous. Brown claims that Sisco threatened his life and remarked at church that "this would be the last night that he or Brown one would go to Chapel Hill to church." Brown further states that he accompanied a young lady home from church and was returning to his home when Sisco overtaken him and started the quarrel, and that he shot Sisco in self-defense. The boys had been enemies for some time. Sisco is sixteen years of age. He is a son of Geo M. Sisco. Brown is 17 years of age.

Tuesday Brown came to town and surrendered.

Votes are coming in fast, and the number of contestants are increasing daily. The names of twenty-two young ladies constitute the list of contestants as shown by the first count of the ballots. The fight is going to be a warm one from start to finish.

Miss Mary Maxwell, of this city, is the leading contestant, as shown by the first count, and Miss Clara Nunn, of Rodney, a daughter of Mr. Eli Nunn, is second in the race. Miss Sallie Summers, of Livingston county, is one of the leading contestants, being third in the contest up to this time. Livingston county is well represented, and the people of that county say that they are determined that the bed room suit shall be won by a daughter of Livingston county. The PRESS is read throughout that county, and Livingston county has equal chances with Crittenden county in this friendly contest.

Wednesday morning the ballot box was opened and the votes cast since the opening of the contest, on October 1st, were counted. Below is the true and exact statement of the standing of the different contestants:

Miss Mary Maxwell.....	31	Miss Ada Howerton.....	4
Miss Clara Nunn.....	18	Miss Nellie Walker.....	4
Miss Sallie Summers.....	16	Miss Ida Duvall.....	4

One of the prettiest millinery displays ever in Marion was that of Miss Payne Oct. 2 and 3. The decorations were artistic and beautiful. One window in purple, which created quite a little attraction, while the prevailing feature was the Pan-American hat, in beautiful black and white French Paon velvet, with ostrich plumes and turquoise garniture. The beautiful head wear showed much skill and mechanism of millinery, art and reflected much credit on Miss Beheimer as an artist in the profession. Miss Payne has proven her success in the profession, and the display of last week gave the public a rare treat.

A Visitor's Death.

Little Lillian Stevens, of Ottawa, Ill., died at the home of her grandfather, Mr. A. M. Wing, of this place, Sunday night, after a brief illness. Mrs. Stevens and two children came over to visit her father some two weeks ago. The interment took place at Repton Monday. Two years ago, while Mr. Wing lived at Repton, his daughter and children came to visit them and one of the children died.

A Good Meeting.

A meeting of unusual interest and power has just closed at Lint Spring, in Livingston county. It began the third Sunday in Sept. and continued for two weeks with unabated interest. There were 16 conversions and sixteen additions to the church. The pastor, Rev. R. A. Larue, was assisted by Eld. W. R. Gibbs, who preached with the power of the spirit. This church is in the midst of a rapidly developing section, most of the people being new settlers.

"WHITTLING SI."

Si Bartholomew—he can whittle anything, you bet! He's about the smartest man that I guess I ever met. Onct he whittled me a boat. An' I sailed it in the drain. An' there wasn't room to float, so I'm waitin' for a rain.

Si's knife's never dull a bit; My, you ought to see him hone! For he mixes in some spit— Yes, sir!—on the whittlin' stone! An' he asked his knife, to use: "Sakes alive! You'll cut your head Clean off, right above your shoes!"

An' he's made a bully bow, An' some arrows, an' a gun, An' a windmill that'll go If you hold it out an' run; An' a dagger an' a sword, An' a teeny drinkin'-cup— He jes' takes a common board An' he whittles it smack up!

He sits 'round' all day, Si does, Whittlin' shavin's in his lap. Pa, he says there never was Such a lazy, shifless chap, An' he doesn't earn his keep— But I think he does, you see, 'Cause he has to work a heap Makin' handy things for me. —Edwin L. Sabin, in "New" Lippincott.

Wooring of the Chorus Boy.

Love and Stage Associations Win Against Millions.

THE chorus boy's valet paused irresolutely on the threshold of his master's bedroom, the rose-colored head curtain gathered in his hand. He had orders to call him at noon exactly; still he seemed to be sleeping so peacefully that the man hesitated.

"Is that you, James?"

It was the voice of the chorus boy. Evidently he had been only dozing. The man allowed the curtain to fall in place with a musical clash.

"Yes, Mr. Cecil. There are two telegrams and a number of notes. Miss Feezy called."

"Miss who?"

Miss Feezy—ser. She said to tell you that Miss Feezy of the Foolsleum sextet had called to run over that last passage where you stuck last night. Those were her words, ser.

"Oh, Fizzie—you mean? Monstrous. To call at such an hour."

"The bawth is ready, ser."

He handed him a cream-colored crash robe with sprawling arabesques and in a moment the chorus boy was splashing in his pink china tub. Cecil always did his thinking during his morning tub and to-day the mention of Fizzie's visit brought back the old days when both she and he were pupils at a dramatic school, never dreaming of the successes that fortune was to spread at their feet. Well did he recall the day when the fat manager came in and looked over the class, indicating with his cane the particular pupils that he thought would do for the Foolsleum sextet.

"Nothing beefy," he said, "we want lightweights. Gentle-looking, neat-footed girls and boys that can sing a little. But lookers they must be."

Side by side Fizzie and he had rehearsed through the long summer until the opening night of "Foolsleum," when the musical sextet made the hit of the comedy, coming in for any number of recalls. Then the papers next day commented upon the fact that the chorus boys all looked and acted like gentlemen and wore their clothes well. Until this, chorus boys had never been noticed or featured in any way. Rough-looking "supes" had always filled the places of peasants and villagers in operatic productions, and their clothes had never fitted them. But "Foolsleum" marked the entrance of the chorus boy on the American stage, although he had been seen in London for a couple of seasons.

The pretty girls of "Foolsleum" had taken the town, but the chorus boys took society. While Johnnies filled the boxes at night, the matinees were social events and the management had to put an awning out, there were so many carriages. The story got about that the girls' bath tubs were kept so full of orchids that they were forced to take cold sponges in the morning instead of the usual before-breakfast dip. Then there had been Wall street plunges, purchases of blooded horses and seaside cottages, resignations and brilliant marriages.

But the success of the chorus boys was more unique, for while society had taken to the stage it could not be said that it had taken to the chorus. At first the "Foolsleum" sextet had been sung at midnight in drawing rooms, the 12 young people driving from the theater immediately after the performance to the stately mansions, where they looked quite in the picture wearing the smart clothes that their parts demanded. Soon Cecil had his first invitation to a luncheon at the home of Miss Nothingbut, an acknowledged society leader. After that he had been simply inundated with attentions. The other boys came in for a lot of it, too, but Cecil was the star. He drove in the afternoon, and rode and golfed in the morning and lunched and breakfasted all day long. Then the idea of Fizzie running in that way. It was dreadful. The child would have to be told. She was a nice little thing, but she hadn't aspired to anything better than being photographed on a raft in a bathing suit with the other "Foolsleum" girls.

Cecil dressed leisurely and walked languidly into the breakfast room, where the chocolate and rolls and fruit waited for him. There were the letters already opened by James, the tiny florist's box with the boutonniere that came anonymously each morning. Well, he knew that the dainty idea was Rhoda Nothingbut's. He opened the box. It was hyacinth this morning.

First he read the telegrams and smiled tenderly over the first. "Good morning, Cecil," was all it said. It was a facsimile of one that came to him at this time each day. Surely she was a noble-hearted woman. If she were only younger. But youth after all was crude. There was Fizzie—uncultured as a hawk. The second telegram was from a Broadway firm of haberdashers asking the privilege of naming a new necktie after Cecil. He endorsed it firmly "No." He had always hated that sort of thing. Besides, the things they named after one were always atrocious. Then he began the notes.

Laura Gotrox wanted him to join a coaching party Saturday afternoon. She always did forget about Cecil's matinee days. Mrs. Harry Highroller was giving something on the 18th. The Highroller parties were always nice. Yes, he would go. Then Miss Betty Boxseat wished him to drive out behind a new pair she had just taken a blue ribbon with. Well, Betty was a fine girl, but it was as much as a man's life was worth to sit in a trap with her while she held the reins. Last time Cecil was all shaken up.

Ha—Ha! The Sunday Omelet wished him to pose for a series of pictures showing the newest things in men's wear. Decidedly not. An author wished to submit a play which he had specially written with a view to the chorus boy as its star. Then another man wrote: "I have just completed a charming sketch, 'All for Love,' which I have written for two. It is in the same dainty satirical vein as the popular Foolsleum sextet, and if you could get one of the young ladies—preferably the one with reddish hair—to take the opposite part, I feel safe in predicting a great success for you both."

The pretty one with reddish hair—that was Fizzie. The chorus boy could remember when he thought Fizzie's hair the most beautiful in the world. Rhoda Nothingbut's hair was like excelsior. What a pity that Fizzie was such an odd little thing. Still he would look at the sketch. "All for Love." Humph.

He was still thinking with annoying persistence of Fizzie and wondering how he would manage to break with her without hurting her feelings. Of course she loved him, but that wasn't the worst of it. He knew that Fizzie imagined they were engaged. When they were at the school together he had been very sweet on her—yes—they had certainly loved each other in a boy and girl way, but Fizzie had taken a lot more out of what he had said than he had meant. That was always the way with a girl who was in love.

The question was how was he to disabuse Fizzie's mind gently of the idea that there was anything serious in it. He had positively paid her no attention whatever for the last few weeks and was always out when she called. He had explained that his social engagements engrossed him to the exclusion of the old times they used to have when they had dined at table d'hotes and lunched at bakeries. They were happy times enough, but it was all over now and a brilliant social career was opening to Cecil. He must not be handicapped by any foolish attachment which Fizzie might feel for him. It was odd how she seemed not to notice. Ordinarily she was a girl of quick perceptions. But in this matter she seemed to have been strangely dull of comprehension. And there was Rhoda ready to be his bride at the drop of a hat. Her father was several times a millionaire.

There was a ring at the bell, but James knew he was never at home mornings, so Cecil continued his cogitations. With an infinite surprise he heard a swish of skirts in the hall and the patter of French heels. In another minute Fizzie unceremoniously burst into the room. Really, the girl was getting too impossible.

"Morning, Cess!" she exclaimed exuberantly; "What's the matter?"

"I was somewhat surprised at your entering without being announced. It is rather unusual, you know."

"Oh, cut that out, Cess; don't put on airs with me. I've some news for you."

"Yes?" Cecil fingered a paper cutter nervously.

"I'm going to be married!"

"What! To be married?"

"To a millionaire."

"Fizzie! You don't mean it?"

"Don't I though. Who do you think?"

"Haven't an idea."

"Mr. Nothingbut."

"Nothing—"

"But, yes."

"But he's 60."

"And a millionaire."

"But, my dear Fizzie, you mustn't think of such a thing."

"Why not? You mustn't think you're the only one who can go in for high society when I'm Mrs. Nothingbut, of Fifth avenue, you'll have to pay some attention to me."

She held out a slim brown hand on which a gorgeous emerald gleamed beside a pure white diamond set in Tuscan gold.

"Great Scott! then it is really true!"

"Of course it's true, and that snippy Miss Nothingbut that you've been driving all over town with—why, I'll be her mother—see?"

"Oh, Fizzie, how heartless you have grown; and I thought you cared for me."

"Oh, fudge; what's the use? We have no money and then you've changed so, Cess; you've no idea. No; I am going to marry poppa."

Fizzie swung her feet impertinently high, showing her new patent leather ties and her ankles cased in dark blue silk. She clasped her hands across her knees. She was looking provokingly pretty this morning, her auburn hair blown out over her ears under her white linen hat with its black pompon rakishly tilted over her eyebrow. Her thin white shirt waisted showed impressionistic glimpses of blue ribbon rosettes against her pink shoulders.

"Don't talk like that, Fizzie: I never dreamed—"

"This is no dream," said Fizzie, turning the ring on her finger; "it's the real thing."

"But fancy a girl like you. I tell you I won't have it. I shan't allow such a thing."

"Why, you've nothing to say about it I guess. You can tell Miss Nothingbut what she must do and she can do it—if her new mama lets her."

"You are engaged to me and if you imagine you can throw me over in this way you're immensely mistaken. I'm no boy."

"I'm going to have a high-backed victoria and two footmen. And I'll come to see you in 'Foolsleum' and invite you to my house sometimes if you're very good."

"I'll see Mr. Nothingbut myself. The man must be mad."

"No—but Rhoda will be simply wild. You see it cuts her out of a few millions. Too bad, isn't it?"

"Fizzie, did you imagine I ever cared for that horsey old thing?"

"I can't allow you to talk like that of my future daughter. Mr. Nothingbut isn't so bad."

"I'll write to your mother unless you promise to give up this idea."

"Can't, my boy. I've notified the manager that I leave on the first. We're going to be married without any fuss."

"Fizzie—do you remember promising that you'd never marry any one but me?"

"Haven't any recollections of it."

"And I imagined you were a true, noble girl."

"Tra-la-la-la," hummed Fizzie frivolously, quoting "Foolsleum" music.

The chorus boy gazed at her helplessly. He was just beginning to realize how he loved Fizzie and that society didn't matter.

"Stage life is disgusting for a girl," he remarked.

"Not any more than for a man," said Fizzie. "You have changed from an ordinarily decent chap to a conceited Johnnie and all kinds of a dude. You weren't a bit like that when we used to go to school together."

"Those were the days," said Cecil. "The good old days." He leaned his head wearily on his hands. "How I hate this life; it is false and artificial."

"Vandeville is the only thing now-days," said Fizzie, "these long runs are demoralizing. If I didn't intend to marry I'd get a nice sketch and go out on a tour of the continuous houses."

"The very thing!" said Cecil. "I have the sketch—'All for Love.' And he told her of the note in the morning mail.

"Is it any good?" asked Fizzie.

"I haven't seen it, but he says it's great. Suppose we look at it and if you like it—why—"

"We could leave 'Foolsleum.'"

"And go as a team?"

"Do you mean it?"

"Then think how it will read. 'Refused a millionaire to marry the chorus boy she loved, who renounces society for his old sweetheart. Going to star in 'All for Love.'"

"What a press agent you'd make, Cess! You are a wonder. After all, Nothingbut is old."

"Old! He's mouldy."

"And poor Rhoda?"

"Rhoda's a well-meaning girl," said Cecil, with one pang as he thought of his morning flowers and telegram. Slowly he reached over and took Fizzie's hand in his. "You know what they sing in 'Foolsleum,' Fizz?"

"No—what?"

"Love, like the Devil, takes care of his own."

And together they sang the chorus. —N. Y. Sun.

WHAT WESTCOTT WON BY SONG

Vocal Excellence Rewarded by Presentation of Articles Wholly Unsolicited to Respiration.

That the author of "David Harum" was conspicuous for his mellow baritone voice is little thought of by those who only know him as an author, says Literary Era. It was a voice so sweet, so rich, and so flexible that it could play any prank with the emotion of those who heard it, and had Mr. Westcott chosen to devote his life to music he would have become a noted singer. But he contented himself with the modest position of basso in a quartet choir in Syracuse, and in delighting his own special friends by singing in a drawing room. He was fond of telling of an occasion on which he was invited to sing at a concert in one of the smaller towns of western New York. The musical affair passed off satisfactorily with the help of the neighborhood talent, assisted by Mr. Westcott's rare voice. As Mr. Westcott was about to retire, his host came timidly to his room, carrying two long paper boxes. "I leave the house so early in the morning to go to my factory," the man explained, "that I'm afraid I may not see you but I want to give you something for your singing to-night. Now, here's two pair of the very best real whale-boned corsets that our factory turns out, and I want you to take them home with you." When Mr. Westcott found he could not even protest effectually, his sense of humor came to his relief, and the fastidious man of cultivated, extravagance stalked home laughing, the next day, with two pair of useless corsets in exchange for his matchless songs.

From Mutton to Money.

There is, or rather was, years ago in this city, a gentleman who did a thriving business in mutton in the market district, and was well known to hundreds of people as a bright and original sort of man. Another man, who had not seen him for nearly 20 years, met him a short time ago, and after inquiries as to his health asked if he was in the same business.

"Oh, no," was the reply. "I'm presiding now."

The man who was inquiring about him was really phased by this answer, and remarked that he presumed it was his ignorance, but he must admit he derived no idea of his business from the statement that the former market man "was presiding."

"Why," he replied, "I mean that I am a president—president of a bank in Cambridge."—Boston Record.

THE PARIS RE-UNION.

Interesting Account of this Great Gathering of Relatives.

The fourth annual reunion of the Paris family was held at the home of L. H. Paris on Saturday, Sept. 28th, 1901. The Secretary, John B. Paris, being absent, Ernest Paris was appointed Secretary, pro tem.

The exercises were opened at 10:25, a. m., by song, followed by reading (Pa. 1) and prayer by the chaplain, Rev. W. F. Paris.

R. F. Paris being absent, Dr. W. J. J. Paris was appointed to deliver the address of welcome. He regarded an address of welcome as unnecessary, as it was useless to welcome the family to their own feast and the friends present knew they were welcome without being told.

Song—Nearer, My God, to Thee L. H. Paris read a hymn.

Song, followed by annual address of the chairman, Rev. J. R. Clark. Song.

A. 11:55 Mr. Paul I. Paris and Miss Ella Swansey, attended by Mr. W. A. Swansey and Miss Pearl Jones, of Kuttawa, presented themselves and requested Rev. J. R. Clark to unite them in marriage, which he did in a short and impressive manner.

After hearty congratulations and the presentation of many wedding presents, too numerous to mention to the beautiful young couple, a sumptuous dinner was spread, to which ample justice was done by the vast throng present. The table was about four feet wide by one hundred and fifty feet long, and was filled to its utmost capacity.

At 1:30 p. m. the people were called together by a song, and the following persons made short talks: Dr. W. J. J. Paris, Rev. D. E. Bentley, Judge J. G. Rochester, H. A. Haynes, W. B. Yandell, John A. Hunt and W. J. Hill, after which the officers and committeemen for the next year were elected.

Brother Sutherland sang "The Road to Heaven," and Bro. Bentley dismissed the assembly by prayer.

NOTES.

A family representing the fifth generation was present, Aunt Polly Hunt, her granddaughter, Mrs. S. R. Gass, and Mrs. Gass's daughter, Mrs. Alex. Hunt, and Mrs. Hunt's baby, which is Aunt Polly's great-great-grandson. The only link missing is the second, Mrs. Gass' mother, who died several years ago. Aunt Polly's descendants number more than one hundred. She is seventy-seven. Many of the speakers expressed the hope that the new feature of having a wedding at the reunion would be kept up. We will try to accommodate all who wish to marry, whether of the family or not. Young men talk fast, the reunion comes but once a year.

Dr. W. J. J. Paris said: The Paris family have always been patriotic. They fought the British in the war for independence, and again in 1812-15. They fought the Mexicans in the forties and the Confederates in the sixties. They stand ever ready to do their duty as citizens, neighbors, friends or Christians.

Last year we were somewhat divided in politics and it was thought advisable to interdict all allusion, in our meeting, to matters of a political nature. This year, this precaution was not necessary. We are all of one politics here today; we are loyal, patriotic Americans. As a family, in common with the great family of our nation, we stand, with uncovered heads, stunned, appalled, shocked beyond our powers of utterance. A cloud of gloom hangs about us because OUR President has been slain by the hand of a wicked assassin, the president who knew no North, South, East or West, no party or faction, but was president of the whole reunited country. Wm McKinley did more than all his predecessors to blot out sectional lines, remove party prejudice and bring the people together as one common family of American patriots. He won, not so much as a party leader as by the innate goodness, beauty and humility of heart he melted down the opposition and rendered it inactive and apathetic. Notwithstanding the great good he accomplished in his life his tragic death, let us hope, has accomplished even greater good, for such shocking calamities and grief make all the world akin. So let us look out from this cloud of sorrow with bright hopes for the future of our country wholly reunited in one indissoluble compact forever. It was a great sacrifice, but so was the sacrifice of that Saviour whom he worshipped; but only think of the great good that has flowed out from Calvary.

I can but think that McKinley's Christian life and Christian victory in death must give a great impetus to the cause in this country. Surely if Christ is a sufficiency for him in life and makes him sing "Nearer, My God, to Thee" in death, He is a sufficiency for the rest of us.

He has gone to that great reunion of the children of God, where there are no anarchists, and every citizen is loyal, patriotic and true.

Rev. D. E. Bentley said: I am by nature unsociable, but the kind and hospitable manner of this meeting somewhat thaws out my cold nature and makes me more disposed to be sociable. I feel that I can honestly express a eulogy upon our dead President, because I have opposed him on the field of battle and at the ballot-box. He was reared in the North and I in the South. He wore the blue while I, a mere boy, wore the gray; he was a Republican and I a Democrat, but today I lay down all differences and gladly do honor to the noble dead. He then proceeded to pay a glowing tribute to the memory of Mr. McKinley.

The following is a brief synopsis of the Chairman's address:

Dear Relatives and Friends: It is with delight that we are assembled in this reunion, but this reunion is not perfect because death has visited our land and taken some away, and sickness and other things that we are not able to overcome, has kept some away from this reunion.

Your faces look cheerful this morning when you meet your friends, but how soon the wave sweeps over the countenance when we think of those that met with us in our last reunion, but today they are not here; they have met with some obstacle they could not for the present overcome. But we hope the difficulty will be overcome by and bye, and that we will meet them in the great reunion beyond this vale of tears. O happy reunion! There will be no more separation. This annual reunion but infers to our mind the separation that takes place annually and makes us think more fervently of the one great reunion that knows no separation. Oh, friends and relatives, are you not anxious about who will be there. Death, with all its relative terrors must be overcome before any of us can get there.

Circuit Clerk H. A. Haynes said: Mr. Chairman and Friends: It is indeed a privilege to be with you today in this family reunion, enjoy your hospitality and hear your words of greeting and good will.

I have thought sometimes that in such reunions as this you are doing more good, perhaps than you know. Love of home and of family, which such gatherings as this but serve to intensify, lies at the base of all good government. What has made the English speaking race, the mother country and our own, the greatest people in the world. Other nations, perhaps, have equaled us in the arts and sciences, and surpassed us in the pomp and glitter and show of artificial greatness, but the world has not known so grand a race as ours, lovers of home, of country and of God, "ready to do all and dare all for the cause of truth and right." And it is a remarkable fact that no anarchist, viperous enemy of all law, all society and all government has come from the English speaking people. And why? Is it not because of this very love of home and of family, that has always characterized our people as it has none other, and that in our homes and our families the first lessons of obedience to law, love of country and love for humanity is taught, and in our homes is begun that training and instilled those ideas of government and discipline that have made our people what they are.

A CARD.

TO THE VOTERS OF CRITTENDEN COUNTY:

At the solicitation of many friends of the various political parties, and having received the nomination of my party without opposition, I take pleasure in announcing that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of county clerk, and hope that you will give my claims due consideration, and any and all favors shown me in this matter will be duly and kindly appreciated; and if re-elected I promise a faithful and impartial discharge of the duties of said office, as I have ever tried to do in the past; and permit me to return you my heartfelt thanks for your many acts of kindness extended me, and for the confidence reposed in me as your public servant and friend in the by gone years, and during all of which time I have endeavored to be faithful to the trusts confided to me, in the discharge of all of my official duties required by law, but how far short I have come, you are to be the judges; and knowing that your judgment will be just, I submit my entire case with you, and whatever decision you may render next November will be cheerfully accepted by me. Respectfully yours,

D. WOODS, Co. Clerk.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, New York. She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine, and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the Remedy." For sale by H. K. Woods & Co.

Illinois Central Railroad Co.

NOTICE TO STOCKHOLDERS.

The Board of Directors of the Illinois Central Railroad Company at a meeting held July 18, 1900, adopted the following preamble and resolution:

Upon the recommendation of the President the resolution adopted July 21, 1897, authorizing the free transportation of stockholders over the Company's lines, to Chicago and return, at the time of the annual meeting of stockholders, was reconsidered and amended so as to read as follows:

RESOLVED, That until the further order of this Board, there may be issued to each holder of one or more shares of the capital stock of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, as registered on the books of the company, a ticket enabling him or her to travel free over the company's lines from the station on the Illinois Central Railroad nearest to his or her registered address, to Chicago and return, for the purpose of attending in person the meeting of the stockholders. Such ticket to be good for the journey to Chicago only during the four days immediately preceding, and the days of the meeting, and for the return journey from Chicago only on the day of meeting and the four days immediately following, when properly countersigned and stamped during business hours—that is to say, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.—in the office of the Assistant Secretary, Mr. W. G. Bruen, in Chicago. Such ticket may be obtained by any registered holder of stock on application in writing to the President of the Company in Chicago. Each application must state the full name and address of the stockholder exactly as given in his or her certificate of stock, together with the number and date of such certificate. No more than one person will be carried free in respect to any one holding of stock as registered on the books of the company.

By order of the Board of Directors. A. G. HACKSTAFF, Sec'y.

The next annual meeting of the stockholders of the Illinois Central Railroad Company will be held at the office of the company in Chicago, Wednesday, October 16, 1901, at noon. For the purpose of this meeting, the stock transfer books will be closed from the close of business on Sept. 21, to the morning of Oct. 17.

Cuts and Bruises Quickly Healed.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm applied to a cut, bruise, burn, scald or like injury will instantly relieve the pain and will heal the parts in less time than any other treatment. The Commoner.

(Mr. Bryan's Paper.)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts; and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1.00 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and THE PRESS together for one year for $1.75. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $2.00.

THE RULES

That Govern Our Voting Contest to Determine the Most Popular Young Lady in Crittenden and Livingston Counties.

(1) Every young lady residing in Crittenden and Livingston counties is eligible to enter the contest. No married ladies can enter the contest.

(2) Every $1.00 paid on subscription to the Press entitles the subscriber to four votes in the contest. Every 25 cent subscription entitles the subscriber to one vote.

(3) A contestant must reside in either Crittenden or Livingston county. The voter may reside anywhere in the United States.

(4) No restrictions are placed on the voter, except that all votes must be cast on ballots provided by The Press for use in said contest.

(5) The voter may pay all of his arrearages, and may pay his subscription as many years in advance as he may desire, and for each dollar so paid, receive a ticket entitling the holder to four votes in the contest.

(6) As received the ballots will be placed in a locked box kept in the Press office for that purpose. This box will be opened every Wednesday morning, and the ballots counted. The next day's issue of the Press will contain the standing of each candidate. The report will appear each week.

(7) The last count before the close of the contest will be made on WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 18TH. The ballot-box will then be locked, the key given to some reputable citizen for safe keeping, and the box remain unopened until the close.

(8) The contest will be closed at 4 o'clock TUESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 24TH.

(9) Immediately after the close a committee of three reputable and disinterested citizens will take charge of the ballot-box, open and count the ballots, and determine the winner in the contest.

(10) The contest will be conducted in a most impartial manner and these rules will be strictly observed. Those interested should read them carefully.

Children's Fertilizer.

That's a good name for Scott's Emulsion. Children are like young plants. Some will grow in ordinary soil. Others need fertilizers.

The nature of some children prevents them from thriving on ordinary food. Such children grow right if treated right.

All they need is a little fertilizer—a little extra richness. Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment.

Fertilizers make things grow.

That's just what Scott's Emulsion does. It makes children grow in flesh, grow in strength, grow rich blood, grow in mind, grow nappy. That's what we make it for.
